jerry,

i don't believe that there will be many more detailed policies established then those that i stated in the netnews. the idea is to keep it simple and clean. i think it makes much sense for all computer managers on the net to review their current net-related operations (note this doesn't concern non network related usage at all) to insure that they conform with the rather straight forward policy i outlined in the netnews. i doubt (and really hope) tht no other group (DCA?) will initiate such a review (the reason for stating it like i did is to preclude their being forced to do this). Even if they do initiate a review, all tht can happen is a formal request from them to you asking you to certify that you are conforming with the policies, so if you check this out on your own, you are ahead of the game.
