Identification

move_entry
C. A. Cushing

Purpose

Make_entry moves an entry from the working directory to another directory in the hierarchy.

Usage

move_entry (entries) path > move_entry deletes each entry in the set defined by entries > from the working directory and appends this entry to > the directory defined by path. In the case where an > entry is a branch, all access information is moved also.

Comments

The user must have the write attribute on in the branch pointing to the working directory and the append attribute on in the branch pointing to the directory defined by path. When the command returns control to the caller, the working directory will be the same as it was when the command was initiated.